Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 09 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly dry east. Showers then rain in west.

Today:
Mainly dry across eastern Scotland with sunny spells. Showers across western and northern parts, and more persistent rain across Shetland, die out towards midday but increasing cloud brings further rain to western parts later. Breezy Shetland and in west later.

Tonight:
Occasionally heavy rain spreads quickly east this evening with clear spells and heavy, blustery showers following to western and northern parts. The east becomes dry overnight with a frost possible.

Friday:
Dry with long sunny spells in east but cloudier across the north and west with occasionally heavy, perhaps thundery, blustery showers. Fresh or, around coasts, strong westerly winds easing.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rain Saturday morning then sunny spells and showers. East mainly dry Sunday and Monday but rain or showers in north and west, potentially very windy in northwest and Shetland Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.